Our PAW- Terrific Week in Review!

Language Arts – Students did a great job completing research on their Revolutionary War figure. Each student used their research to write a biography about their important figure. Students typed their biographies on the Revolutionary War newspapers that they are creating. We also read and analyzed a poem by Robert Frost.

Math- We practiced multiplying, adding, and subtracting fractions. Students are doing a great job reducing fractions to their simplest form and drawing fractions models of to support their answers. Please remember our website has many great links to practice math skills. Students can go on their portal to practice with Mega Math.

Social Studies- This week we completed a timeline to review the events leading up to the Revolutionary War. We also played Road to the Revolution Kahoot it and had many great discussions about unfair taxes and unfair laws. Students read The Struggle for Independence and compared it to the struggle they are facing in our classroom. I love the connections that the students are making! I understand there is a Declaration of Independence in the works. I cannot wait to see it! I think the students have learned a very valuable lesson and can understand why the Patriots were willing to risk everything for life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.
